OVERVIEW

Murphy Austin's Construction Law Team provides representation of and advocacy for all participants in the construction process including owners (both public and private), general contractors, subcontractors, sureties, suppliers, insurers, design professionals, construction managers and other project participants.

Our services include those relating to licensing, pre-construction planning, preparation and negotiation of contracts, front end documents and bid solicitations, bid protests, and construction and post-construction challenges, claims and all types of disputes (mediation, arbitration, and trial of construction disputes, as needed). We also provide representation with respect to construction related issues having environmental impacts or consequences.

We have substantial experience in working with clients to address asserted deficiencies in performance (both substantively and procedurally) during projects to minimize impacts and promote protection of our client's interests. Client service is a hallmark of who we are and what we strive to deliver. Being available to respond to clients when needs arise is part of our culture, orientation and commitment.

Our team possesses collective experience of more than 150 years of client-focused representation. Our construction law practitioners are very experienced in using alternative dispute resolution and our focus is on solution-driven representation.

In addition to advocacy for our clients, we also provide neutral services (mediation and arbitration) which are structured to meet the specific needs of the parties and help achieve prompt, cost-effective, and well-reasoned solutions to construction and commercial disputes.
